To Whom It May Concern,

It is with deep appreciation that Covenant House Vancouver shares this letter to honour the contributions of the Jones Family Foundation, whose partnership has been instrumental in advancing our mission to support youth experiencing homelessness.

As CEO of Covenant House Vancouver, an organization dedicated to providing unwavering support for young people experiencing homelessness, I have witnessed firsthand the lasting impact of their commitment to our mission and the youth we serve.

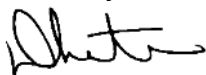

Over the years, the Jones Family Foundation has contributed more than half a million cumulatively to Covenant House Vancouver, including ██████████ in the past year alone. Their generosity has helped us expand our reach and deepen our impact, most notably through their support of our capital campaign, which enabled us to open a new, purpose-built facility designed to meet the complex needs of vulnerable youth.

They were also early champions of a new and unique program that addresses the immediate and pressing challenges youth are currently facing. Thanks to their belief in this initiative from its earliest stages, the program is now operational—actively saving lives and breaking down barriers to care for young people in our community.

The Jones Family Foundation has walked alongside us with trust, vision, and compassion, helping us build a stronger, more inclusive community where young people can find safety, belonging, and hope.

We are proud to call the Jones Family Foundation partners in this work and are grateful for the opportunity to share what their support has meant to us and to the youth we serve.

Sincerely,

Deb Lester
CEO, Covenant House Vancouver
